DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 1-17 is allowed.
2. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

The prior art of record does not teach or suggest a circuit system for wireless communications with details of circuit arrangements comprising a printed circuit board, an antenna switch, a first filter, a first matching network, a converter, a second filter, a second matching network, a power amplifier, and the coupling of the matching networks as cited in claims 1 and 10.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claim 18 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Liu et al. U.S. Patent No. 6,876,836 B2).

Regarding claim 18, Liu teaches a radio frequency (RF) front end circuit system for transmitting and receiving RF signals via a first and a second antenna comprising a printed circuit board, and antenna switch with two input ports and two output ports for enabling any of the input ports to either of the output ports, wherein the output ports are coupled to the first and second antenna, respectively (see Fig. 1 and col. 2/lines 11-41), and a filter and a power amplifier mounted on the printed circuit board (Fig. 3 and col. 3/lines 24-59).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 19-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Liu et al. U.S. Patent No. 6,876,836 B2) in view of Jensen (US Patent 6,075,995).

As for claims 19 and 20, Liu does not further address the components for the printed circuit board (PCB) and the interconnection among the antenna switch, the filter, and the power amplifier with the range in width and the spacing; however, Jensen teaches the PCB has these features of four layers of copper and three layers of substrate and a thickness of about 40 mils as well as the range in width and the spacing between the signal traces and a ground plane (see Jensen, Fig. 5 and col. 7/lines 45-61). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Liu's system with a detailed PCB with constructed materials and the size and the spacing as taught by Jensen for containing and arranging the RF front end within the RF communication device.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure: Liu et al., Tarusawa et al, and Baldwin et al. (in PTO 892 attached) disclose systems related to communication devices with two antennas and techniques.
